CONSTANT BOMBING IS SHOWING EFFECT

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

A reader calls and asks that we comment on the Federal Excise Tax which is on many things you buy, and comes to 10 percent of the purchase price.

This tax was put on during the war by President Roosevelt with the promise that when the war was over it would be taken off. The idea was to raise money to finance the war.

The same thing with the income tax. The allowance for each member of the family was high before the war and it was lowered to $600 for the duration to finance the war.

It has never been raised to the former figure, we have forgotten even what it was.

This is an example of dishonesty in government. It was expedient to keep the tax on for financial reasons, but it was not honest.

The Excise Tax should be removed. Southern Bell is pushing this right now because the government is making tax collectors out of the company at a tremendous cost to Southern Bell. It also makes their service seem higher than it really is.

Our reader who called pointed out the fact that she is on Social Security and dishonest taxes such as this make it more difficult for her to make ends meet.

We have noticed that most temporary taxes turn out to be permanent taxes.

Former President Truman said yesterday that "Taxes should be equal to the combined bills of the county, city, state and federal governments or you're in trouble."

Another way of saying it is that the bills should equal the taxes, and not vice versa.

The federal government operates on the principal that the taxes should equal the bills. That is why taxes are so heavy. If the bills equaled the taxes, then we might get some relief.

Then too Truman is the one that told U.S. Steel that they could raise wages without raising the price of steel so we are not too surprised at his remark.

The Garden Department is planting the boxes around the square again this year.

They ask that folks not put cigarette butts, soft drink cups, chewing gum wrappers etc. in the flower boxes.

The ladies are turning out en masse to plant the boxes this year taking quite a lot of effort and time.

Well apparently history repeats itself.

Looking out the front door of the office and there was that old Starling again who nests in the hollow behind the cornucopia over Mr. Bruna's hardware shop.

There is no place to light before he goes into the hollow so he just has to hang suspended in the air until he can get a top hold and crawl into the hollow where he is building a nest.

At least he remains undaunted. After every try he flies back to the

BOND SALES GOOD

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 24 — Bids for constructing a new section of U.S. 641 north of Murray in Calloway County will be opened May 14, Governor Edward T. Breathitt and Highway Commissioner Henry Ward announced today.

The relocation project will begin at 12th and Chestnut Streets in Murray and extend north to near South Grove Church, a distance of 3.2 miles.

The contract will call for grading, draining and backfilling the new highway, which will have a 24-foot wide driving surface and 10-foot shoulders. The project is expected to be completed by this fall.

Ward approved an allocation of state funds for this improvement. He said the project is being conducted by the Highway Department and showed this to be a top priority project among other desirable projects on U.S. 641, and after he had made a personal inspection of the road.

In making the announcement of the allocation, Ward said this trip along U.S. 641 demonstrated conclusively the priority of this project, and also the need for improving the road crossing on U.S. 641 at Hazel.

In February Ward approved an allocation of state funds for improving the road crossing on U.S. 641 to be realigned at the crossing so as to cross the road at a 45 degree angle and eliminate two sharp turns. This project will be carried out by state forces and should be completed later this year.

One of the highlights of the show will be the auction Saturday night at 7. Dozens of articles donated by local merchants and citizens will be auctioned. Among them are an antique pump organ and a complete business course of 24 Alexander Hamilton Institute books.

Prior to bidding, door prizes will be given, and there will be a drawing for a 20-pound country ham.

At an Old Country Store, home-made foods and crafts will be sold. All proceeds from the show are used for Grove High Band activities. The show is conducted by the Grove Band Parents Club.

Travel In North Vietnam Is Reduced. Move From Cities

By DONALD H. MAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly two months of U.S. bombing raids have produced some signs of strain in the Communist regime in North Vietnam, U.S. officials said today.

Administration sources cited reports that travel has been reduced in the southern portions of North Vietnam during the daytime.

They also said there was evidence of some movement of people out of major cities, presumably as a precaution against U.S. bombing of urban areas, which so far the United States has not done.

Officials conceded, however, that the bombings thus far have resulted in no indication of any Communist decision to alter their policies in the war in South Vietnam or to agree to any serious negotiations.

Hope For Effect
In the long run, however, officials still hope the raids will ultimately have an effect on North Vietnam's willingness to continue the war.

Administration officials made clear that the United States for the time being has no plans for major increases in U.S. personnel in South Vietnam.

They said no decisions have been made beyond the recently disclosed plans to boost U.S. forces with a few thousand additional men. This increase has already been started.

Officials have displayed increasing concern over criticism of U.S. policy on Viet Nam around the country, particularly on college campuses. The State Department is stepping up its program of sending speakers to explain U.S. policy to college and other groups around the country.

Tommy Workman Is Listed As Good

Tommy Workman is listed in good condition this morning at Murray Hospital after a tractor accident yesterday. He sustained something burning as he was proceeding down the highway near Lynn Grove, driving a tractor pulling a wagon.

As he looked down to find the source of the fire, he hit a culvert, throwing him off the tractor. Workman, 23 years of age, is reported in good condition. Apparently some part of the tractor got hot as he was pulling a load of tobacco down the highway.

Waterfield Picks Senate Races He Says He's Behind

By CAROLE MARTIN
United Press International

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — 1st Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield said today he could pick the men he'd back for the state Senate election, but he said he was not yet ready to help from the governor's "informed sources."

"They're not only trying to dictate who's going to be elected, but they're trying to dictate who everybody's supposed to be for, including me," he said in an interview. Waterfield explained that he is backing candidates in 10 Senate primary races — not 12 as an unnamed administration source was quoted recently — and he isn't willing to concede any of them.

The lieutenant governor, who is presiding officer of the Senate, said he was "encouraged by the prospects" in such races, but declined to make any predictions.

He did emphasize, however, that he had not taken sides in either the 2nd or 12th District races, despite being assigned candidates in each by the administration spokesman.

Gov. Edward T. Breathitt is backing Wendell Ford, of Owenboro in the 8th District of Daviess and Hancock counties. "I'm for Cap Gardner, but there's not much use commenting on that race," Waterfield said.

Gardner, the incumbent, was handpicked by Waterfield to be Senate majority leader in the 1967 General Assembly and there is no doubt about which candidate is in which camp this spring.

"I'm very strong for Dick Ezyre of Madisonville, very much for him," Waterfield said of the 9th District race. The administration candidate from that district of Tyeon, Oakfield, Hopkins and McClellan counties is Niles Dillingham of Dawson Springs.

Incumbent Sen. Marvin Edwards, of Lawrenceburg, is "entitled to be re-elected" from the 20th District of Franklin, Shelby, Scott, Spencer and Anderson counties, according to Waterfield. The administration supports former Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby in this contest.

In what may be the toughest race of them all, the 26th District of Orlan, Trimble, Carroll, Gallatin, Henry and Owen counties, Waterfield said:

"We'll be for Tom Harris of Westfield as vigorously as we can. There's no one more qualified. (Continued On Page Three)

Minnesota's 200 Hitters Dangerous

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer

The Minnesota Twins are bulging with so much muscle that even their 200 hitters are dangerous.

Reserve catcher Jerry Zimmerman has been in the majors over years—one with the Cincinnati Reds and three with the Twins—and has yet to hit his first home run or triple. He started the current season with a .217 lifetime batting average and the hope that manager Sam Mele hadn't forgotten his name.

The 30-year-old native of Omaha, Neb., seeing the biggest hit in the Minnesota rack Friday night, however, when he delivered the key hit in the Twins' come-from-behind 8-6, 10-inning victory over the Detroit Tigers. The victory stretched the Twins' winning streak to five games and gave them a 6-1 season mark in the young American League season.

Rare Chance
Zimmerman, who entered the game as a replacement for regular catcher Early Baretz, got one of his rare chances for glory when musclemen Harmon Killebrew and Jimmie Hall walked to open the 10th.

Bob Allison, another of the Minnesota home run threats, filed out but then Zimmerman whistled a line single off reliever Fred Guiding to drive in the run that snapped a 6-6 tie. An error by Jerry Lumpe permitted the second run of the inning to score.

The Tigers rocked Jim Grant for five runs in the first inning and Al Kaline's homer gave them a 6-4 lead in the seventh. The Twins tied the score in the eighth with the aid of a run-scoring infield out by Allison and a single by Baretz.

Minnesota relief pitchers Bill Plets, Dave Boswell, Jerry Fosse and Al Worthington held the Tigers to one run and four hits for the final 2-3 innings with Worthington picking up the victory.

The Baltimore Orioles beat the Boston Red Sox 4-2, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Washington Senators 5-3, and the Cleveland Indians downed the Kansas City A's 6-2 in other games. Los Angeles at New York was rained out.

In the National League, St. Louis whipped Cincinnati, 6-3. Houston edged out Pittsburgh, 4-3. Los Angeles and New York snipped San Francisco, 9-8, in 11 innings. Milwaukee at Chicago was rained out.

Robin Roberts scattered nine hits and contributed a three-run double to the Orioles' puny four-hit attack to win his first game of the season and his 27th of his career. Robert's 2-3 double came off rookie Jim Lonborg in the third inning. Lee Thomas homered for the Red Sox.

Danny Carter, obtained from the Phillies during the off-season, snapped a 3-3 sixth-inning tie with a two-run homer to help Bob Locker win his first game. Bill Skowron and Ken Berry hit key doubles for the White Sox while Ed Britton had two hits for the Senators.

Rocky Colavito, the idol of Cleveland fans, doubled home one run and scored two as the Indians gained their second straight home victory. Dick Donovan and Luis Tiant collected in a six-inning win, hand-licking the A's to two hits and striking out five in the last four innings. Jim Gentile homered for Kansas City.

Podres, Dodgers Have Found Themselves Again; Laugh At '64

By FRED DOWN

UPI Sports Writer

Johnny Podres and the Los Angeles Dodgers can laugh off 1964 as the "lost year" because both the man and the team have found themselves again.

A World Series pitcher here in 1955 and 1963, Podres was bothered with arm miseries in 1964 and didn't win a game all year. He was on the disabled list from June 19 to Sept. 13, underwent surgery and started the 1964 season as one of baseball's big questionmarks.

But, as they say in the Los Angeles clubhouse, all's well with the Dodgers when Johnny is bending that elbow in first-class style.

Which is exactly what Podres did Friday night when he pitched a brilliant four-hitter in his first start of the season to give the Dodgers a 4-0 win over the Philadelphia Phillies. It was his first victory in National League competition since Sept. 16, 1963 and his first complete game shutout since July 23, 1963.

What's more it extended the remarkable record of the Dodger staff which is shaping up as one of the strongest in baseball history.

55,899 Americans Are Habitual Users Of Narcotics; Many Others Are Not Known

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thousands of Americans have consigned themselves to a living death through use of narcotics. In the following dispatch, last of two, a UPI reporter tells what the government is trying to do about the problem.

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U. S. Bureau of Narcotics knows the names of 55,899 Americans who are habitual users of heroin, morphine or other narcotic drugs. It figures there are a few thousand others age, who have no skills other than criminal skills, and who have extremely low degrees of motivation to conform to usual social customs," says Dr. Harris Liebel, director of the famed U. S. Public Health Service hospital for addicts at Lexington, Ky.

Used By All
Other dangerous habit-forming drugs such as "pep pills" amphetamines and "goof balls" barbiturates are being widely used in America by all classes of people, including teenagers from "good" families. But addiction to narcotics is essentially a phenomenon of urban ghettos. More than 80 per cent of the known narcotics addicts live in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles or Detroit. More than 75 per cent are members of disadvantaged minority groups—Negroes, Puerto Ricans, and Mexicans.

Anyone who has ever had a shot of morphine before an operation, or a dose of paragon to stop stomach cramps, knows how an opiate affects the mind. It produces a dreamy, floating-out-of-the-world state in which real-life problems are forgotten in favor of pleasant fantasies. The regular user becomes psychologically and physically dependent on narcotics.

Since he can buy narcotics only through illegal channels, the addict pays dearly for them—an average $5 for a shot of heroin that will keep him going for a few hours at best. He is rarely able to hold down a job, and is usually too passive to commit a crime of violence. To finance his habit, he steals or becomes a small-scale "pusher," retailing narcotics to other addicts.

The Senate investigation subcommittee, which conducted an extensive inquiry into the narcotics traffic last year, estimated that it yields about $360 million a year for the Mafia-controlled underworld crime syndicates which tightly control wholesale distribution of heroin.

The profits are enormous. One kilogram 2.2 pounds of heroin can be purchased from black laboratories for about $2,500. Smuggled into the United States, heavily adulterated with milk sugar and quinine, and divided into small packages for retail sale, it will bring $225,000.

In an effort to stamp out this vicious racket, Congress has imposed severe and inflexible penalties for illegal possession or sale of narcotics. The minimum sentence for simple possession of narcotics with no evidence of intent to sell them to another person is two years in prison for the first offense, five years for the second offense. For selling narcotics, the minimum sentence is five years for the first offense and ten years for the second offense with no possibility of probation or parole.

Prettyman Report
The late President Kennedy early in 1963 appointed a special commission, headed by Judge E. Barrett Prettyman to look into the operation of the narcotics laws and determine whether any changes are needed. The commission's report, submitted to President Johnson last year, calls for drawing a distinction between criminals who are engaged in large-scale sale of narcotics for profit and addicts who peddle a few packets to finance their own habit.

By all means let's keep stiff mandatory prison sentences for the real racketeers, the commission said. But to deny parole to an addict who has been caught selling or giving away a small quantity of narcotics is inhumane and makes rehabilitation of these hapless offenders "virtually impossible."

A man who is up for five or ten years, with no hope of parole, has little incentive for overcoming the defects of personality and education which led him into dependency on drugs. As for those whose sole offense is possession of narcotics that is addicts not accused of peddling—the commission said they should be treated as sick people rather than criminals. It proposed a system of "clinical" under which addicts could be sent to hospitals for treatment, with supervised aftercare to prevent their relapsing into their old habits. This rehabilitation procedure would be compulsory, and any addict who declined to go through with it would become subject to imprisonment under the old criminal penalties.

Backy Recommendations
President Johnson placed his personal endorsement on these recommendations in a special message to Congress March 3. He called for enactment of a federal civil commitment statute "to provide an alternative means of dealing with narcotics users likely to respond to treatment and achieve rehabilitation."

Another proposal which has received a lot of publicity calls for establishing free public clinics to supply narcotics addicts with "maintenance" doses of drugs. Exponents of this idea claim that it would eliminate the illicit market, and by taking the profit out of drug peddling, would remove the underworld's incentive for getting new victims "hooked" on heroin. They sometimes assert, inaccurately, that this system has been tried

QUEEN ELIZABETH is 89 years old on April 21, a point at which a lot of women like to stop having birthdays. This photo of her was made in Canterbury at the royal Maundy Thursday ceremony when she performed an ancient custom. The ruling monarch at that time distributes coins to the number of men and women equal to his or her age. She distributed 89 pence (45 cents) to 39 men and 39 women. A set of these collector's items is valued at around $56,000 on the U. S. market.

In Great Britain with great success. Actually, Britain has no free narcotics clinics. It does permit physicians somewhat more discretion than that allowed by the U. S. Bureau of Narcotics in withdrawing addicts gradually over a long period of time, instead of hospitalizing them.

Condemn Clinic
The American Medical Association and the National Research Council in a joint statement in 1963 condemned the "clinic" idea as medically unsound. The statement pointed out that narcotics users cannot be "stabilized" on a maintenance dosage, but require ever larger amounts. It warned that addicts desist would use the free supplies only as a base for habits to be further indulged through illegal channels.

The Narcotics Bureau also is dead-set against any such approach. It points out that the United States tried free narcotics clinics during the 1920's with disastrous results. Many people registered simultaneously with several centers, and sold their government-supplied narcotics to addicts who could not get by with the regular ration.

The prospects of Congress buying the free clinic plan are rated close to zero. The outlook for the legislation requested by President Johnson is considerably brighter.

Goal Of FHA Is To Make Better Life For Community Members

By Connie Hopkins
It is the goal of all FHA girls to make their lives better whether it be in their home, school, or community. In the past eight months the Calloway County High FHA Chapter has done extensive work on one of the FHA National Projects in the area of helping youth community. The National Project is entitled "Action for Citizenship."

This project was designed to help members appreciate their citizenship by learning, living, and loving. It will also help them as homemakers of tomorrow to see their responsibilities for the community and learn to carry out these responsibilities in ways that will make for better homes throughout the nation.

In working on this project the chapter placed special emphasis on citizenship in our community; but before we could begin work we had to discover the community and determine its needs.

The chapter invited Mrs. Betty Lowery to speak at a regular meeting on "The Role Women Can And Should Play In Community Affairs." Mrs. Lowery is active in civic affairs, church, and is presently serving as State Second Vice-president of the Women's Club.

Then the whole chapter went to work. The first main project was to start a monthly visitation program of FHA girls to the Convalescent Hospital. This is one of the chapter's activities that is still in progress.

On Halloween the FHA girls participated in "Trick or Treat for UNICEF." The chapter members collected over sixty dollars for this international children's fund. In the month of December the Calloway County High FHA Chapter sang Christmas carols over the public address system of the Murray Calloway Co-

Structural Measures:
Seventeen Floodwater Retarding Structures were authorized in the Soil Conservation Service work plan. Five have been completed and are performing satisfactorily. These five structures provide a sediment pool storage of 647 acre feet and flood pool storage of 2696 acre feet. This means that approximately 30% of floodwater retarding measures have been completed.

Of the twelve remaining structures, five have been surveyed, with four designed. Land rights have been obtained on three of the designed structures and 50% of easements have been secured on the other two. Construction on three are scheduled for this summer. Invitation for bids for construction on two are being released on the week of April 27, 1965.

Shannon Improvement consisting of 276,410 lineal feet is to be installed. (Soil Conservation Service plan). Of the total 31,680 lineal feet have been constructed and in operation in McCracken County. Approximately 21,120 lineal feet have been surveyed and designed in Graves County and 75% of easements have been obtained. It must be pointed out that a large portion of Channel improvement will have to be constructed after other structural measures have been installed.

Hundreds of landowners located in the lower reaches of the watershed are disturbed over the Corps of Engineers delay in improving the main channels. Special committees are working with these owners to speed up construction plans. We believe it is necessary that this part of the watershed be completed to provide overall benefits to landowners and to insure efficient operation of the entire system.

Organized resistance by a small group of property owners along the main stream protesting wide channel plans recommended by the Corps of Engineers, has been encountered. However, the chairman of this group has stated more than once before the Board of Directors that his committee supports the Conservancy District in its effort to control floods and spreaders. His landowners are concerned over the spoil that a wide channel excavation would place on their land.

Resistance by landowners affected by works of improvement already in progress has not been a problem in the District has not obtained a single parcel of land by court deed.

History of Benefits:
All structural improvements have performed according to design plans. Five floodwater retarding structures were in place at the time of the March deluge of 1964 when as much as 17 inches of rain within a six day period was reported in the vicinity near some structures. These structures were newly constructed and damaged to the dams and spillways was not excessive. All road bridges on streams immediately below the dams were safe.

Landowners are beginning to see the benefits of the structures in areas below the dams and are planting crops of tobacco and vegetables where they dared not plant before the dams were in place. Local landowners, friends, and neighbors are enjoying recreation. Wildlife is improving on and near all of the water impoundments.

A. B. Rhea, in commenting on a dam being built on his farm, put it this way, "Where this flood lake is being built was a huge thicket, practically worthless, not only will it control floods on the rest of my farm, but my neighbors will get the same benefit. I intend to build a summer home and other improvements soon."

This he did, and today floodwater structure RA is considered a show place in Calloway County. Other landowners are preparing to buy lots for retirement home purposes. These improvements mean a great deal in providing tax revenue for support of local schools, roads, etc.

Robert Heath, chairman of the West Fork Clark River Watershed Board of Directors, in summarizing the annual party the members donated gifts for a Care package.

Through chapter members working on degrees the Calloway County FFA collected and contributed money to the United Fund. Several girls working on degrees have also made tray favors for the hospital.

The Breathitt forces are supporting incumbent state Sen. Alvin Kidwell, of Sparta, in the 28th. These were Waterfield's comments on other races where he has candidates.

14th District, Bullitt, Nelson, Washington and Marion counties: The administration backs incumbent Sen. J. D. Jiggs Buckman of Shepherdsville. "I'm for Roy Arnold," Waterfield said.

22nd District, Woodford, Mercer, Jessamine, Garrard and Madison counties: The administration candidate is Guy K. Duerson, of Berea. "I'm just very strong for Edward Morley of Richmond. He's unlettered, he doesn't have any ties or contracts or such things as that to tear him from unaffiliated service to his district."

24th District, Kenton County: Breathitt is backing John J. Moloney, former mayor of Covington. "I'm for Carl Ruh also of Covington."

30th District—Franklin, Pendleton, Breckinridge, Harrison, Nicholas and Bourbon counties: Incumbent Sen. Wilson Palmer, of Cynthiana, has the administration backing. Waterfield's candidate is Frank L. Shropshire of Paris.

32nd District, Breckinridge, Ohio, Grayson, Edmonson and Warren counties: Floyd Hayes Ellis, of Rockfield, is the administration candidate. Waterfield prefers Richard Moorman of Letchfield.

Elbow Grease Needed For Real Cleaning

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK 88 — Chasing dirt at spring cleaning time now is more a matter of pushing buttons than it is of using the elbow grease.

A survey shows that the average housewife today is using twice as many electrical housecleaning appliances as she did as little as two years ago. The jobs get done faster and more efficiently.

Another trend: RENTING THE CLEANING EQUIPMENT. This eliminates the need for heavy investments in complicated equipment that is used only a few times a year.

How To Handle
The survey, conducted by Glaxo Inc., cited these ways the housewife will handle the spring cleaning chores:

—Rug Cleaning: She rents an electric rug shampooer at the supermarket, hardware or department store for $2 per 24-hour day. By pushing a button on the handle, the housewife feeds a measured amount of shampoo onto the rug while the brushes scrub.

—Floor Cleaning: Here, again, electrical floor polishers with highly efficient action have replaced the hands-and-knees approach. These can be rented for around $1 per day, complete with steel wool pads, felt buffer pads, and lamb's wool pads. The steel wool is used to remove dirt and old wax and scratches. Then the machine applies power wax and rubs it into the wood. The felt buffer pads then are attached to begin the polishing job. The lamb's wool pads finish the chore.

—Many New Cleaners
—Upholstery Cleaning: New cleaners make sofas, stuffed chairs and upholstered furniture come clean in a single application. The homeowner pushes a button to deliver a small quantity of upholstery shampoo. She brushes it in with the brush on the end of the applicator to remove soils and stains.

—Over Cleaning: The new spray down cleaners cut through baked grease in ovens in about three minutes, according to the manufacturers. One manufacturer has a spray that should be applied after the oven is pre-heated to 200 degrees. The heat, combined with chemicals, breaks down the baked-on mess.

—Walls and Woodwork: A variety of all-purpose cleaners remove most marks and dirt from walls with the wipe of a cloth.

Dean Rusk made a blunt speech charging that some critics of the government's Viet Nam policy are talking "non-sense" and retreating to the isolationism of the 1900s.

Rusk's remarks, in an address before the American Society of International Law, were aimed at those calling for an end to the U.S. bombing raids, to critics in the academic community and, in advance of unconditional negotiations. He said that "sure catastrophe" would follow any compromise with aggression, no matter where it took place in the world.

"This has become a very small planet," Rusk said. "We have to be concerned with all of it."

Dear Abby . . .

It Takes Two, Lady!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law invited my husband and me to have Easter Sunday dinner at their home. Just as we were getting ready to leave for their house, they presented themselves at our home all dressed up. This is the way she put it: "Your son decided to take ME out for Easter Sunday dinner instead, just the two of us. Wasn't that sweet of him?" And off they went! Since we had planned to have dinner at their home, I had nothing prepared at home, so my husband and I went to a restaurant and ate by ourselves.

A few days later I found out that my son and his wife went to HER parents' home for Easter Sunday dinner. This upset me terribly and has been preying on my mind. What is your opinion of a daughter-in-law like that?

UPSET
DEAR ABBY: It was a very shabby trick, but your daughter-in-law had the full cooperation of your son in order to pull it off, so he is as guilty as she is. Don't let it fester. At the appropriate time, tell them both that you are wise, and clear the air.

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of my problem. My husband is retired and his hobby is walking. There's no harm in that, but besides taking long walks outside, he walks back and forth inside our house half the night. He weighs over 300 pounds and when he walks, the whole house shakes. I tell him that walking in the house is not the same as walking outside, and he should please go outside and walk around the block as many times as he wants to, but he says I am being unreasonable. I have never asked him to stop walking before 10:30 p.m., I like to go to bed early and, with his feet stamping, I can't tell you how nerve-racking it is. So who's unreasonable?

WALKER'S WIFE
DEAR ABBY: He is. Ask him to walk to his dealer's. Your husband could be walking himself (or you) into a nervous breakdown.

DEAR ABBY: Somewhere I had heard that during an electrical storm it is always best to leave a cellar window open so that lightning strikes, it can a ray out of the house. Do you, or any of your readers, know anything about this? My husband has turned it into a big joke, and I have no way of knowing if what I heard was true or false. I hope you can come up with an answer because I am tired of being called—

"FLASH"
DEAR "FLASH": According to Mr. Charles C. Benford, who has been the Chief of the Beverly Hills Fire Department for 46 years this is false. Lightning seeks the "ground" (that's the purpose of a lightning rod), not a "ray out." Chief Benford added that this tale is superstitious—like the old Pennsylvania myth that if you put on your slippers by the light of the moon, it will keep them from burning.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter signed "THREW HIM OUT," from a woman who did just that when she learned that her husband, who had grown cold to her, had got friends all over town to whom he was undoubtedly warmer: However justified "THREW HIM OUT" was in writing her letter, it is only one specific case, but to read it in your column on could assume that it is more general than specific. For the sake of the suspense and unhappy by this inference, you should promptly print what every doctor, lawyer and clergyman knows: that a husband's physical abuse is not a fair measure of his true love and devotion, his breach of his fidelity.

"GIRL FRIENDLESS HUSBAND"
DEAR HUSBAND: While a deficiency of physical affection is no fair measure of a husband's true love, devotion or fidelity, neither is an abundance of physical affection proof of it. Kind that goes double for wives.

The suspense Gordon Ashe adventure by (John Creasey) A PROMISE OF DIAMONDS

wouldn't have tried," Della said logically. "He always dreamed of finding diamonds."

"Did he talk much about them?"

"Sometimes," she said. "He was apprenticed to a diamond cutter once but gave it up. He had always promised me diamonds. He didn't realize that I just wanted him. But he always had to go looking for the moon and I didn't even mind that."

"How often did he go away?"

"Most months," she said. "We lived here for five years. At first I hated it, but I grew to love the desert. I will do. He used to work for three weeks and go away for one. At first he was sure he'd strike it lucky, but toward the end he didn't say much. He just used to go off. I think he was afraid of admitting that he was beaten. Then he stayed home for two months, and I thought he was going to give up. I think he would have but for the letter."

"Letter?"

"From Donovan."

Dawlish fought back a rising excitement.

"About the prospecting?"

"Yes. Donovan said he was sure he'd found blue ground and offered Nigel a half share if he would help him work it."

CHAPTER 18

TEARS were making Della Forrest's eyes glisten.

"Major Dawlish," she said, "do you really think Nigel's a thief?"

"I know Donovan was," said Patricia Dawlish thoughtfully. "Della had come round to the subject without prompting, and that was just what he had wanted. 'You know far more about Nigel too. The evidence so far here says that he wasn't a thief.'"

She looked startled.

"Here? In this house?"

"There isn't much evidence of a successful career of crime, is there?"

She stared, not at first comprehending.

"Oh, he hadn't any money?"

"None?"

"Very little, anyhow," Della said. "He used to work for one or other of the copper and asbestos miners near here, or he'd do some rock testing for gold and uranium—the big companies pay a good fee. I've a few hundred pounds a year of my own too."

"No, he didn't make money from crime."

"That doesn't mean that he

"Did he say where?"

"No."

"Do you mean that Nigel didn't tell you or Donovan didn't tell him?" Excitement crept into his voice.

"Donovan just said they were to meet at the place they'd worked together before. Nigel said it was about a hundred miles southwest and he could find the spot himself."

"Did he describe it?"

Della frowned as if trying to recollect.

"Does it matter?" she asked slowly.

"It could matter a great deal."

Della frowned. Most of her attention had gone to finding her husband, counting in Dawlish had helped even more.

"Yes, he certainly described it. Major Dawlish. He plotted the course on a map. I remember he said not only that it was about a hundred miles southwest but that the trail marks were some big rocks, a mesquite tree, some old mines—a small vein of gold was found there once—and a range of black hills. After a pause she added, "Will that help?"

"You'll never know how much. Did the letter say anything else?"

"No," answered Della without hesitation. "Nothing."

"Donovan seemed absolutely sure," asked Dawlish.

"Yes."

"Did you tell anyone else about these trail marks?"

"Not for a long time."

"Why not?"

"I didn't want anyone to follow him," Della replied. "If he struck it lucky, he wouldn't want anyone to know about it. It would start a rush and spoil everything." Donovan had said he mustn't tell anyone. It was in a postscript, underlined. I can almost see it to this day."

"Della," Dawlish said, "have you still got Donovan's letter?"

"Nigel took it with him."

"Did Nigel say nothing else about it?"

"Absolutely nothing," Della answered him.

"Whom did you tell eventually?" asked Dawlish.

"A friend of Nigel's. Della's reply was almost too casual. "Jeff Mason, I mean. He went off to look as far as the black hills, but there was no sign of an abandoned truck or of anyone working. He kept on trying to convince me that Nigel would never come back, and I'm sure he hoped he wouldn't."
